Wynn Resorts Comments on ISS Report

Urges Shareholders to Vote FOR All Three Wynn Directors on the WHITE Proxy Card Today

LAS VEGAS – May 6, 2018 — Wynn Resorts (NASDAQ: WYNN) (“Wynn”) today issued the following statement in response to a report issued by Institutional Shareholder Services Inc. (“ISS”) related to the election of directors to Wynn’s Board at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders on May 16, 2018:

“We appreciate that ISS’s report recognizes our Board’s swift and decisive actions to promote change over the past three months, including an ongoing Board refreshment process that has already resulted in the addition of three highly qualified female directors who strengthen the Board’s skill sets, experience and diversity.”

“However, by recommending that votes be withheld on Jay Hagenbuch, ISS has placed symbolism ahead of pragmatism. Over the 5 ½ years that he has served on the Board, Jay has made important contributions that have benefited shareholders and shareholder value. The entire Board believes that shareholders benefit from Jay’s knowledge of the Company, our financial operations and our specialized regulatory framework.”

“By recommending that shareholders not vote Elaine Wynn’s blue card, ISS clearly recognizes the weaknesses in Elaine Wynn’s campaign and notes that her arguments very well might be motivated by personal animosity. It also highlights her position as a member of the Wynn Board for a prolonged period of time and questions her own culpability for many of the things for which she now criticizes the Board.”

“The Board’s actions over the past three months have demonstrated that it is committed to moving swiftly to improve corporate governance and accountability, and we have made clear that we will continue to build on our substantial progress.”

DON’T RISK DERAILING THE PROGRESS WYNN’S BOARD HAS MADE
